

U. S. Ready To Protect Americas

Franco - German Step Will Not Find This Nation Asleep to Any Eventualities

Fleet Is Factor

Acquisition of French Fleet, Bases Could Be Held as Threat

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Washington, May 16 (AP)—The threat of a Franco-German "collaboration" alliance which President Roosevelt believes can jeopardize western hemisphere "peace and security" found the United States prepared today for any action needed to safeguard American interests.

Mr. Roosevelt, it was said in informed quarters, possesses sufficient authority without going to Congress to take whatever steps are necessary to counter any joint Nazi-Vichy action endangering the interests of the United States and the other 20 American republics.

The gravest threat to the American nations, it was said, is the possibility that, in "collaborating," France may be forced to turn over to Germany her fleet and the strategic naval base at Dakar, Oran and Bizerte.

President Roosevelt, Secretary Hull, and other American officials have made it unmistakably plain in several addresses that Germany's acquisition of the French fleet—believed now to comprise 92 warships of all categories, including 60 submarines—would be considered a direct threat to the American nations.

Could Imperil Shipping

German control of Dakar on the hump of the African coast commanding south Atlantic sea-lanes, naval authorities pointed out, would provide the Nazis with a base from which U-boats and bombers could play havoc with American shipping and with Britain's "life-line" around the Cape of Good Hope. Dakar has been spoken of often as a logical "jumping-off" point for a thrust against South America.

In the western hemisphere, a Vichy-Berlin Axis of "collaboration" brings into question the status of the French colonial possessions in Martinique, Guadeloupe, French Guiana, St. Pierre and Miquelon.

The United States has shown particular interest in Martinique because of its strategic position in the center of the shield of American naval and air bases guarding the entrance to the Panama Canal. Martinique also shelters 100 American-made warplanes which were en route to France when the armistice was signed; the aircraft carrier Bearn, at least one other French naval vessel, and several merchant ships; and from $50,000,000 to $250,000,000 of French gold.

Several Courses Open

In the event Vichy-Berlin "collaboration" warrants, the United States has several courses open, informed sources said. It may:

Place French colonies under its own protection or the joint protection of hemisphere nations. Stop all food shipments to unoccupied France and terminate negotiations under which Vichy hoped to secure 15,000 tons of wheat monthly.

Halt the petroleum shipments which have enabled French North African colonies to proceed with their spring planting, and cancel plans for sending other vitally needed supplies.

Refuse any more withdrawals from "frozen" French assets here estimated at $1,500,000,000, depriving the Vichy government of funds for its embassy and consulates here and throughout Latin America.

Cafe Operator Killed

Canton, O., May 16 (AP)—Robert Efinger, 51-year-old cafe operator, was shot to death in a daring daylight holdup today when he resisted two robbers who escaped with $13,700 in cash.

Decree Expected

All Foreigners in French Empire Soon Will Be Under New Ruling

Vichy, France, May 16 (AP)—A decree is anticipated shortly creating a super-committee named by Vice Premier Admiral Jean Darlan to control all foreigners, especially Jews, in the French empire. The committee is expected to have wide open powers to conduct investigations concerning foreigners and be in complete charge of all such inquiries.

Reports of the impending decree were heard in the wake of a round-up of 5,000 foreign Jews in Paris and hundreds of jobless foreign refugees in Marseille, many of whom were waiting to leave the country.

Hess's Flight Is Subjected to More Intense Scrutiny

Major Adams Says He Would Seek to Learn Whether Hitler Is Behind Case

London, May 16 (AP)—Out of the welter of controversy and speculation about Rudolf Hess' flight to Britain came the announcement from Major Vyvyan Adams today that he would seek to learn whether the deputy fuhrer's trip to see the Duke of Hamilton "was planned with the connivance and support of the German government."

Adams, a Conservative member of Parliament, gave notice he would put his question to Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper at next week's House of Commons session.

Labor Minister Ernest Bevin yesterday called Hess a calculating "murderer" and said he came with the full knowledge of Adolf Hitler.

The British intelligence service took a growing interest in the case. The government called for help in analyzing statements obtained from Adolf Hitler's former "shadow."

Possible new developments in the affair were foreshadowed, meanwhile, by an early-morning conference between Minister of Information Alfred Duff Cooper and the Duke of Hamilton, Scottish nobleman through whom, the Germans assert, Hess believed he could single-handedly arrange peace with Britain.

Arrives in London
The Duke, an R.A.F. squadron leader, arrived in London after midnight at the controls of an army plane after talking with Hess for a second time in the secret retreat where the German is guarded as closely as any prisoner who ever entered the old Tower of London.

It was reported last night that the nobleman was accompanied by Ivone Kirkpatrick, foreign office adviser and former British embassy secretary in Berlin who knew Hess before the war and who established his identity.

An authoritative source said today however that Kirkpatrick still was "within reach" of Hess for more of their frequent interviews and that reports Kirkpatrick had come to London were untrue.

After talking with Hamilton for an hour, Duff Cooper was reported to have paid a hurried visit to Prime Minister Churchill. The Duke of Hamilton, a pre-war acquaintance of Hess, was said to have been given leave from his military duties to help in unraveling the case. He carried a bulky dispatch case when he called on Duff Cooper this morning.

Informed sources declared that Hess had proved a willing talker and on several occasions had probed his conversations with Kirkpatrick despite a physician's recommendation that he rest. Though supplied with plenty of light reading matter, he is not permitted to see newspapers and is allowed to listen to only certain radio broadcasts, it was said.

His ankle, injured in his parachute landing, was said to be mending, and physicians were said to have taken X-Rays to relieve him of anxiety that he was suffering from a stomach ailment.

Strike Is Averted in Auto Plants

General Motors Accepts Mediation Board Plan Few Hours Prior to Deadline

Provides Raises

Flat Wage Increase of 10 Cents Per Hour Is Granted

(By The Associated Press)
A threatened strike against the General Motors Corporation, holder of $750,000,000 in defense contracts, was averted early today when the company accepted a national mediation board peace formula a few hours before the schedule deadline for the walk-out.

The mediation board tentatively scratched another labor dispute off its books with word of union acceptance of terms to settle a strike at the Ex-Cell-O Corporation, Detroit die and tool plant.

The General Motors settlement provided a flat wage increase of 10 cents an hour for an estimated 250,000 workers in 89 plants, and for no closed shop, union shop or maintenance-of-membership shop. Under a new contract to run one year from April 28, 1941, the company agreed not to lock out its employees, and to give consideration to seniority in making promotions.

The corporation estimated the wage increases would add $50,000,000 annually to its payroll. The present average wage before the raise, the management said, was about $1 an hour.

The C.I.O. United Automobile Workers originally had called a strike against 60 of the General Motors plants for 7 a. m. Thursday, but the union postponed the deadline for 24 hours at the mediation board's request. Nevertheless, more than 35,000 G.M. employees walked out of plants at Flint and Saginaw, Mich., yesterday—a result, the union said, of a misunderstanding about the postponement.

The agreement remained to be ratified by the union membership, but C.I.O.-U.A.W. leaders expressed confidence that would be done without delay.

Calls It Victory

Walter P. Reuther, director of the G.M. division of U.A.W., called the agreement "the greatest victory" for General Motors workers since the first contract was signed in 1937, and said the wage increase was the largest ever won in the automobile industry.

Although employees of the Ex-Cell-O Corporation at Detroit voted to accept terms to end their 10-day strike, the management had not agreed to the mediation board's suggestion and the time of reopening the plant thus was uncertain. Terms of the proposal were not disclosed, but the union had sought a basic wage increase of 10 cents an hour. The current wage rate was not made public.

Detroit, however, was experiencing other labor disputes. Some 8,500 C.I.O.-U.A.W. members struck against the Hudson Motor Company, asking 15 cents an hour increase over unrevealed current wage scales. Ten thousand A.F.L. craftsmen in Detroit went out on a sympathy strike last Friday in support of 1,500 lumber truckers who seek union recognition, a 5½ cent wage scale and wage increases. Present pay rates have not been announced.

There were labor troubles too, in San Francisco, and far to the west of the Golden Gate, at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. Labor Secretary Perkins denounced a strike of C.I.O. and A.F.L. machinists which is holding up $500,000,000 worth of naval construction in the San Francisco Bay area. The machinists seek a wage increase from $1 to $1.15 an hour, and retention of double pay for overtime.

Brief Work Stoppage

There was a brief work stoppage on construction projects at the Pearl Harbor naval reservation yesterday, but a union official said it was "definitely not a strike."

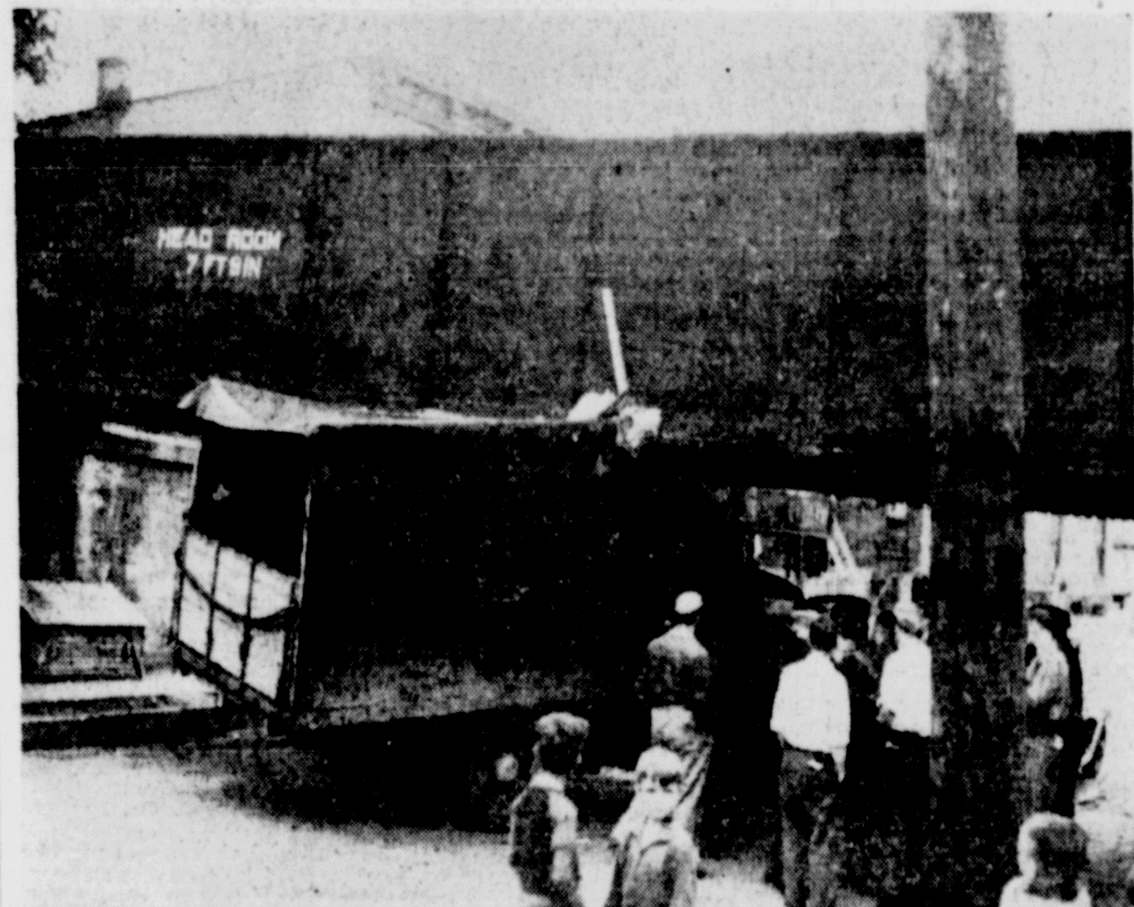

The demonstration appeared to have been held in an effort to gain uniform wage and hour scales for all crafts. All went back to work except 230 plumbers, who were escorted off the reservation by Marines after they laid down their tools. The plumbers were working 44 hours a week for private contractors and were being paid $1.25 to $1.50 an hour. They wanted a 40 hour week and uniform wages of $1.50 an hour.

At New Haven, Conn., the Winchester Repeating Arms Company granted all employees a 10 per cent wage increase, shortly after 250 employees in two departments had staged a short work stoppage. The old wage scale was from 45 cents to $1.20 an hour.

Another wage controversy was ended at a smokeless powder bag loading plant at Dublin, Va., although terms of the settlement were not announced immediately. Violence broke out in coal miners' picket lines at Madrid, N. M., but was quelled by state police who used tear gas. The striking miners are asking a closed shop and a basic wage scale of 87½ cents an hour.

Mayor Signs Bill To Provide Water Outside Kingston

Permissive Act Enables Water Board to Ask State's Sanction to Sell Water

Mayor C. J. Heiselman this morning signed the local law which was unanimously adopted by the Common Council earlier in the month, granting the water department the power to sell water to other than inhabitants of the city. Following the official printing of the bill in the newspapers it then goes into effect.

The mayor before signing the bill held a public hearing on it on Thursday evening, at which the majority of those who spoke favored granting extension of water service to the houses on Golf Terrace, just outside the city in the town of Ulster, but those residing on Lucas avenue protested the low water pressure and said that before water service was extended outside the city, pressure should be improved.

Under the provisions of the bill each non-resident applicant for the purchase of water must file an application, citing all pertinent facts on a form to be prescribed by the water board.

That the sale of water must be approved by the New York State Water Power and Control Commission; that the water board may assess such costs against the non-resident property owners for the installation of water lines and facilities as the board may deem proper.

That a water meter be installed on the premises; that the non-resident must first deposit $10 with the water board before the water is furnished.

That charges for water consumption shall be at least 10 per cent more than the water meter rates within the city.

Cozza Escapes Injuries as Truck Jams Underpass

Ralph Cozza of 90 Broadway escaped with minor injuries while the auto truck he was operating became wedged under the railroad bridge on East Union street, shortly before 10 o'clock this morning. The top of the truck was wrecked.

According to Mr. Cozza's report to the police department he was driving over East Union street toward Hasbrouck avenue, when he saw a man ahead of him hold up his hand. He did not realize he was about to pass under the railroad bridge, he said, and jammed on the brakes as the truck came in contact with the bridge.

Mr. Cozza said that fortunately he was driving slowly, having the truck in second gear. At a meeting of the Board of Public Works earlier this week a communication was read from Alderman Walter Donnaruma of the Sixth ward, calling attention to an accident recently to another truck, and asking that a plan be considered to lower the roadway to give more headroom for vehicles passing under the bridge.

The truck in the accident today is owned by Herbert C. Van Vleet, operating as Van's Auto Express.

Speedy Approval Asked

Washington, May 16 (AP)—Democratic leaders asked the House today for speedy approval of Senate amendments to the administration's ship seizure bill, in an effort to dispatch it to President Roosevelt before the week-end. With one exception, the House seemed disposed to accept with little debate half a dozen minor amendments attached to the measure when the Senate passed it 59 to 20 yesterday. Chairman Bland (D., Va.) of the Merchant Marine Committee said, however, that he wished to inquire into a Senate amendment forbidding the United States to take over, except by purchase, any of the 85 idle foreign vessels in American ports if they are government-owned.

Board Indicates School Expansion Not Favored Now

Steps for New Vocational Training Facilities Are Expected, However, Before Next Fall

Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, Alderman - at - large John J. Schwenk, Corporation John M. Cashin and the members of the Board of Education met in conference last evening to discuss the proposition of proposed expansion of high school facilities and also the proposition of supplying additional vocational facilities for the opening of the school year next September.

Nothing definite was decided upon but it appears that some action will be taken to provide additional vocational training facilities by the fall opening of the schools. The matter of financial standing of the city, advisability of entering upon a building program at this time and the possible future requirements were gone over at length, the meeting still being in session after 11 o'clock last evening.

From the conference it developed that some immediate steps for additional vocational training should be taken and President Schmid said today that provisions would be made for taking care of vocational students this fall. While nothing definite was announced it appears that any large building program at this time is off. This would indicate that the plans submitted by five architects for an expansion and readjustment of the present high school facilities is off for the present.

Financial conditions of the city at present will allow but a small additional bonded debt and the difficulty in getting building materials, particularly steel, at this time would make a large building program now a rather uncertain proposition.

There is also a question whether steel for any vocational training

Verbal 'World Series' Is Without Decision

An argument as to which is the better ball team in the big leagues led Ethel Lewis, 30, a negress of 3 Canal street, and Dorothy Hahn, 28, of 96 Broadway, to stage a fist fight on Canal street at 3 o'clock this morning. Both were charged with disorderly conduct when arraigned later before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court and fined $5 each on their pleas of guilty to the charge.

According to the story in court, Ethel claimed the Dodgers were the best team, while Dorothy held out for the Yankees.

According to both women (and the police) no decision was reached.

R. A. F. Smashes At Nazi Bombers At Damascus Base

Berlin Paper Announces Nazis Have Taken Positions for Next Blow of War

(By The Associated Press)

R.A.F. warplanes were officially reported smashing at German bombers poised at Damascus, Syria, reputedly the oldest city in the world still inhabited, as Nazi tanks were declared today to be rumbling across the French-ruled colony en route to the rich oil kingdom of Iraq.

The semi-official Turkish broadcast a report that "Axis officers in both Syria and Iraq are going about the streets in uniform."

In Berlin, the well-informed commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said flatly that "the positions from which the next blow will be struck have been occupied"—an evident reference to Nazi infiltration into Syria and Iraq.

Unconfirmed reports said French fighting planes were escorting Syrian bombers and troop transports in their flights across Syria. British Middle East headquarters announced that R.A.F. warplanes attacked the German aerial invaders yesterday in a series of raids in Syria, including Damascus, Rayak and Palmyra, where some of the principal airports are situated.

Nazi troop transports as well as giant bombers were said to have arrived in the French-ruled colony. Countering the Axis threat, British reinforcements were reported to have arrived in both Iraq and Palestine.

Dispatches from Beirut, Lebanon, told of new sparks which may spread the conflict still further—a stiff protest by the Iraq government to Emir Abdullah of Trans-Jordan against asserted hostile thrusts by Trans-Jordan forces along the Iraq frontier.

Trans-Jordan, which borders on Iraq and Palestine, is guarded by strong British forces under Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson. The Baghdad government declared that "swift and severe measures would be taken if the frontier incidents were not halted."

Russian Help Reported

Iraq newspapers flared with headlines reporting that Soviet Russia was "disposed" to lend help and that Russian volunteers were joining the Iraq air force to help fight against Britain.

On the North African war front, the German high command acknowledged that British tanks had stormed back into the key frontier post of Salum, just inside Egypt, which has been the scene of fierce fighting for weeks.

A Nazi communique also noted that strong British forces advanced on Fort Capuzzo, across the border in Libya.

This would indicate a serious setback to the Axis drive toward the Suez Canal, which only a few days ago had knifed 45 miles into Egypt.

Except for diplomatic formalities, informed quarters said, the United States has reached an open break with the French government. Chief of State Philippe Petain, 85-year-old hero of Verdun.

In London, the British government was reported to have solemnly warned France against further collaboration with Germany, especially in view of developments in the middle east.

Reuters, British news agency, quoted a dispatch from Cairo that German occupation of Syria had begun, with Nazi tanks, war materials and planes crossing the French-mandated nation in the direction of Iraq—apparently in response to an appeal by Iraq's government.

Asks Rejection

President Asks French Reject Collaboration With Nazis

Washington, May 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt said today that international conditions were too serious for him to interpret or comment further on the implications of his appeal last night to the French people to turn down collaboration with Germany.

He dismissed a barrage of press conference questions seeking to draw him out as too hypothetical. Among the queries he put in that category were these:

Is there likely to be a change in the status of Martinique, the strategic French island at the eastern end of the Caribbean?

Will Admiral William D. Leahy, American ambassador at Vichy, be asked to come back to Washington to report?

Would any additional steps be taken in the French situation? To a remark that he had made his appeal to the French people, over the heads of the French government, Mr. Roosevelt said his statement last night would have to speak for itself.

He suggested that the state department be asked whether the United States might take action, under its agreement with other Latin American nations, toward taking over some European colonies in the western hemisphere if they were threatened with a change of sovereignty.

The United States, except for the diplomatic formalities, reached an open break today with the Vichy government of France.

The administration, informed sources said, is satisfied that the Petain regime has embraced a program of increasing partnership with Germany and henceforth must be considered in about the same category as the governments of other Nazi-dominated nations in Europe.

Guards Are Posted

Guards were posted last night on French ships in U.S. ports.

The situation immediately thrust to the fore the future status of French colonial possessions in the western hemisphere, particularly Martinique in the Caribbean and French Guiana on the northeast coast of South America. A high official singled out Martinique as one colony that was receiving special attention.

There was no inkling in government quarters as to just what action might be contemplated, but administration spokesmen have repeatedly made clear that any attempt by a puppet government to use new world colonies in the interests of another power would be considered a change of colonial sovereignty and hence a violation of the Monroe Doctrine. The United States took Greenland under its protection as a precaution against this, following German occupation of Denmark.

The posting of guards on refugee French ships came without warning. Coast Guard headquarters here made a brief announcement early last night that armed

France Takes Action Like U. S. Lease-Lend Bill, Berliners Say

Berlin, May 16 (AP)—France merely would be applying the lend-lease principle if she permitted German passage through Syria in order to get at the British in Iraq, informed commentators asserted today.

Authorized sources would neither confirm nor deny, however, that German planes actually would pass through Syria. Nor would they make any comment which in any way could be regarded as official.

On the other hand, they were willing to discuss the matter unofficially from the viewpoint of the German-man-in-the-street.

It's strictly the French government's affair, these sources said emphatically, in answer to all questions regarding Syria.

Badly knocked about by the hurricane which recently swept the South Pacific, bananas unloaded by ships at Christchurch, New Zealand, sold for five cents a large case.

Better Pressure Asked

Several residents of Lucas avenue, speaking at the public hearing Tuesday evening on a local law designed to give the water board the power to sell water outside the city, expressed the opinion that before any such power was granted that the water board relieve water conditions on Lucas avenue where the pressure was so low, it was said that water could not be drawn on the second floor
while the faucet in the kitchen was open.

Corporation Counsel John M.
Cashin expressed the opinion that the State Water Power and Control Commission would not permit
the city to sell water outside the city limits until the water conditions, such as complained of, were remedied.

All of those who complained of low pressure on Lucas avenue said
they had no objection to the people residing on Gold Terrace in the town of Ulster buying city water,
but believed that pressure on that street should be made normal before the water mains were extended.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who presided at the hearing, announced that he would reserve decision on the local law.

Van Etten Objects

The only objection made to the adoption of the bill was made by N. C. Van Etten of Lucas avenue, who said he was speaking as a taxpayer. He claimed if water service was extended to the town of Ulster it would help build up that town at the expense of the taxpayers who owned vacant building lots in the 12th ward.

Attorney N. Jansen Fowler, who said that he was speaking both as a citizen and as an attorney for one of the banking institutions which had considerable money invested in the Gold Terrace area,
said he did not believe that the law was inconsistent as the measure had been carefully drafted. He called attention to the development in the town of Ulster, just over the city line.

This development had first been started, he said, by Harry Stickle-s and later others had aided in the development. Those who developed the district and who had erected houses there had no intention of asking the city to supply them with water when they built their homes, but had gone ahead and had wells dug and pumps purchased.

These persons had invested considerable sums of money in the development of their properties.
Lately, however, it had been found that the water from the wells was unfit for human consumption, and that the use of the present water supply must be abandoned.

Institutions Involved

Among the institutions that had considerable money invested, said
Attorney Fowler, were the Savings
and Loan Association of Kingston, the Homeowners Savings and Loan Association and the Ulster County Savings Institution, as well as those who had erected homes in the affected area.

These persons who live in this affected area, he said, work in Kingston and spend their money in the city. They are now on the spot, he said, unless they can obtain suitable water supplies. If they do not they will be forced to close their investments.

N. C. Van Etten said he was speaking as a taxpayer. He called attention to the low tax rate in the town of Ulster as compared with that of Kingston, and said that those who had built homes in the town of Ulster had done so to escape paying the higher city taxes.

Mr. Van Etten said "if you want to build up the town of Ulster give them city water." He said he was one of several who owned building lots in the Twelfth Ward
and that if the local law was approved and the water board permitted to sell water to town of Ulster residents that they would not be able to dispose of these building lots.

He called attention to the fact that when the villages of Port Ewen and Woodstock had desired to purchase water from the city
they had been denied. He said that when people built homes in the town of Ulster they did so to escape the higher city taxes.

"It is their hard luck," said Mr.
Van Etten, "if they do not have a pure water supply." He said that the people of Kingston should have some protection, but "you cannot build houses here if you develop the town of Ulster."

Tells of Low Pressure

Victor H. Roth of Lucas avenue, said that residents of Lucas avenue have difficulty in getting proper water pressure in their homes.
He said that he hoped the people in the town of Ulster were able to purchase city water, but he believed that it was also the duty of the city to furnish Lucas avenue residents with proper water pressure.

Charles S. Keefe, architect, of Lucas avenue, also spoke of the low water pressure on Lucas avenue and said that when water was being drawn on the first floor that it was impossible to draw water on the second floor owing to the lack of water pressure.

Mayor Heiselman, who presided
at the hearing, said that it was the duty of the water department
to see that there was proper pressure and that if pressure was as low as stated that the water board should install a booster pump in that locality.

E. J. Trowbridge of 316 Lucas avenue, said that he was having
the same difficulty in his home
owing to lack of water pressure.
He expressed the opinion that if the water mains were extended to Gold Terrace the water pressure on Lucas avenue would be still further lowered.

Clifton Avenue Difficulty
The mayor said that the residents of Clifton avenue had the same difficulty as to water pressure, and said he had taken the matter up with the water board
and urged that a booster pump be installed, but that nothing had been done about it as yet.

There had been an improvement
in water pressure, the mayor said,
in the central part of the city since the standpipe had been erected on Marion street several years ago by the water board, but that the installation evidently had not improved water pressure on Lucas avenue.

Messrs. Roth, Keefe and Trowbridge, said that they had no objection to the city selling water outside the city limits, but they were interested in the problem of water pressure on Lucas avenue,
and believed that should be remended.

Flanagan Speaks

E. Frank Flanagan said he was speaking as representing the Savings and Loan Association, as a business man and as a taxpayer
interested in the subject of city taxes. He expressed the opinion that conditions complained of on Lucas avenue should be taken care of. As far as any financial loss was concerned in the affected area
he said the banking institutions
were able to take care of the loss,
if any, but that the principal subject of interest was the 40 or 50 persons who have invested their money in building projects.

As far as supplying Port Ewen or other places in the vicinity of Kingston there had been no emergency such as existed due to unfit water supplies. He said he had been talking with members of the water board and they had informed him that the city had plenty of water to sell.

Speaking as a business man, Mr.
Flanagan said that if these 40 or 50 families were forced to abandon their properties owing to the impure water supply it would mean a loss to the business men of the city as they did their buying in the city. As a business man he said he was interested in seeing that these people obtained proper water supplies.

Mr. Flanagan said he wanted to go on record as in favor of the proposed local law.

From Health Standpoint

William Sheriman of Golf Terrace said he desired to speak on the subject from a health standpoint rather than a financial viewpoint. The water supply had been condemned and as a health measure the ones in the affected area
should be supplied with pure water.

Marie Barly said that the petition for water from the city was not intended as a building boom
for the town of Ulster.

Bert Beardsley of 288 Lucas avenue said that during certain hours

of the day it was impossible to draw water in his house.

"If the people get city water on Gold Terrace," said Mr. Beardsley, "they are going to have the same difficulty we are having with water pressure."

Corporation Counsel John M.
Cashin said that the local law on which the hearing was being held
was what is known as a permissive bill, not a mandatory measure. He said that before the city could sell water outside the city
it was necessary to obtain permission from the New York State Water Power and Control Commission. This commission, he said, would not grant permission until conditions that had been complained of that night were remedied.

Mayor Heiselman is closing the public hearing said that he would reserve decision on signing the local law.

This local law was unanimously passed by the Common Council at its last meeting.

though the vocational school might be used for training of youths for defense jobs. In this matter Mayor Heiselman cited the difficulty in getting steel for the towers which will carry the lighting at the Municipal Stadium. He said steel manufacturers had not only been unable to complete the towers but did not have the steel out of which to make them.

In view of the crisis the Board felt that any unnecessary
building program would be frowned upon at this time and it might be extremely difficult to get materials even for a vocational school
addition unless such construction
were to be classified as necessary
by the government and be allowed a preference of materials.

Poppies Arrive For Legion Sale

Veterans to Sell Flowers
in City May 24

The Legion Memorial Home at 18 West O'Reilly street is virtually blooming with poppies as the Kingston Post No. 150 and its Auxiliary complete preparations for the annual observance of Poppy Day here, Saturday, May 24.

The little red flowers of "memories of the past" are being taken from the boxes in which they came from the Veterans' State Hospitals, where they were made by disabled war veterans, and arranged for distribution on the streets on Poppy Day.

"The poppies are made in exact replica of the wild poppies in France and Belgium on the World War battle fields," said past commander Harry Kirchner, in charge of arrangements. Many hundreds of disabled veterans who could perform no other work are given employment by the Legion Poppy Day program. The money they earn brings vital help to a large number of homes.

"The man who makes the flowers are comrades of those in whose honors the poppies are worn," Past Commander Kirchner explained. "Into these little flowers they place great memories of the past and from the work they derive new hope for the future. We feel certain, Kingstonsians will receive our volunteer committees kindly on Saturday, May 24."

The Boulder Dam recreational area drew 655 visitors in the 12 months ending last September 30.

HOME BUREAU

Anita Smith Talks

One of the most interesting numbers on the entertainment program which featured the final meeting of the year of the Ulster County Home Bureau Advisory Committee, was the talk by Miss Anita Smith of Woodstock. Miss Smith, well known as a herbalist, told of some of the superstitions and beliefs as to the miraculous value of certain herbs and roots, which maintained in the early days—and which still have their believers. She also spoke of superstitions generally as evidenced by stories current in colonial days of happenings in the Woodstock section and included other anecdotes of colonial days.

The meeting Thursday was held in the Rochester Reformed Church at Accord, about 130 Home Bureau members and guests attending. It was an all-day affair, with reports on the work of the year being given by various members. Attracting much comment on the program was the dramatization of the Home Bureau creed, the sketch being written and directed by Mrs. Howard A. Lewis of Kingston. It was introduced by singing of the Home Bureau song by Mrs. Frank Drake of Lake Katrine, who was accompanied by Mrs. Donald Parrish. Taking part in the dramatization were: Mrs. Auley Roosa, Lake Katrine; the Misses Thelma and Bertha Tucker, Walkill; Mrs. A. D. Rose and Mrs. Winfield Swart, Kingston; Mrs. Demetrius France, Lomontville; Mrs. George Adams, Mt. Marion.

Leaders in local Home Bureau

units who reported on activities during the year included Miss Bertha Coons, Accord; Mrs. Winfield Swart, Flatbush; Mrs. Raymond DuBois, Forest Glen; Mrs. A. L. Berwin, Kingston; Mrs. Gordon Boice, Lake Katrine; Mrs. Lester Arnold, Modena; Mrs. Mason Grant, Napanoch; Mrs. Harry Kutzschbach, Woodstock.

Miss Everice Parson, Home Bureau agent, conducted the meeting and presented a program of work for the coming year, which was approved by the representatives present.

Deadline Is Set For Nurses to Get Practice Permits

Governor Lehman has signed the Todd amendment to the nurse practice law, thereby granting an extension of time for nurses to apply for licenses. Applications for license as either graduate or practical nurse will be received by the State Board of Nurse Examiners until July 1. This measure was sponsored by the legislative commission to formulate a long range health program for New York. Many nurses, both graduate and practical, who failed to make application under the present law, have wished to apply for their licenses. It is to give these nurses, who may have the qualifications required by law, another opportunity to apply for licenses, that the time extension has been given. Qualified out-of-state graduates may also make application to try the New York State Board examinations. All applications must be on file with the Board of Nurse Examiners by July 1, 1941. This extension will give the Board of Examiners a brief period in which to finish reviewing the applications now on file and those which will come in between now and July. The nurse practice law will thus work no hardship upon qualified nurses whose applications have been filed but who may not receive licenses by July 1, of this year. Under this amendment they may continue to nurse for hire during the period of waiting for final action upon their applications.

Every nurse who wishes to continue the practice of her profession is urged to complete her application and file it with Miss Stella Hawkins, secretary of the State Board of Nurse Examiners, Albany, by July 1, 1941. After that it will be too late. Everyone who knows a nurse who has not yet made application for her license is requested to call her attention to this article.

Woman Is Crushed

Syracuse, N. Y., May 16 (AP) — A woman was crushed to death today as firemen sought to rescue her from the sagging second floor of a three-story brick building that collapsed a half-hour before. She was Mrs. Howard Harter, 41, mother of five children. Five others of her family were injured and another family of nine escaped unharmed in the unexplained collapse.

Jury Takes Less Than Half Hour To Give Verdict

It took an Ulster county jury less than an hour of deliberation to arrive at a no cause of action verdict Thursday afternoon in the $100,000 action brought by Mrs. Mary McPhilly Davison of Poughkeepsie against Dr. James A. Mathers and Dr. L. E. Sanford, Kingston city health officer.

The verdict against Mr. Davison was seen not only as a verdict for the defendants but also as a verdict supporting and endorsing the democratic form of government and as a vote of confidence and approval of the courts and judicial system, since one of Mrs. Davison's main points and one upon which she dwelled at great length and offered much testimony was her contention that the courts were improperly set up, that the judges were incompetent and biased and that the legal system permitted attorneys to engage in "racketeering" to the detriment of clients.

The morning session of court was taken up in the summation of counsel. Cashin & Ewig, appearing for the two defendants, while Mrs. Davison summed up her own case in a complete review of her contentions. Justice William Murray charged the jury and the jurors retired. Lunch was served the jurors and after less than an hour of deliberation the jury reported at 2:10 p. m. that a verdict had been arrived at. Shortly after the jury was brought in, polled by Clerk Robert A. Snyder and the verdict was handed up by Foreman William Kelly.

'WOMEN UNITED' UNITE ON CAPITOL STEPS

John M. Cashin, who was present when the jury was polled, asked the court for permission to thank the jurors since the case had been a long and most unusual one but Justice Murray said this was not necessary. Mrs. Davison made no comment on the verdict and made no motions relative to the verdict but left the court shortly after the jury had reported.

The $100,000 action was brought against the two doctors who made a mental examination of Mrs. Davison in 1939 and as a result she was committed to Middletown State Hospital from which institution she escaped a few weeks later by leaving the state after she had been given permission to leave the institution grounds with relatives. She said she believed she had not been legally committed to the institution and therefore felt she had a right to leave the institution and take refuge in an adjoining state from where she notified the institution of her whereabouts.

Later she did return to Poughkeepsie and to the jurisdiction of the hospital but she was never returned to the institution. Later she received a discharge from the hospital.

During the trial several doctors testified she now needed institutional care and doctors from the hospital said her present mental condition was improved over that at the time she was in the hospital but she was described as a "dangerous" person who should be under treatment now.

Following the action of Mrs. Davison No. 134, Universal Credit Company, Inc., against Andrew M. Thomson and Alfred F. Doyle, an action for money received, was taken up for trial and a jury selected. Guido J. Napoletano appeared for plaintiff and Judge Andrew J. Cook for the defendant.

How to make horsepower out of Thin Air!

Buick SPECIAL
6-passenger Sedanet, $1006,
white sidewall tires extra.*

If you know anything at all about automobile engines, you know they run on a mixture of gasoline and air.

So consider these plain facts about the engines in this 1941 Buick SPECIAL:

The engine that regularly powers this Series develops 115 horsepower and turns up 20.1 miles per gallon at a steady 30 miles an hour in Proving Ground economy tests.

But add Compound Carburetion,† and the same engine in the same model develops 125 horsepower and goes 21.5 miles per gallon by exactly the same tests!

There's more from less gasoline — and it comes, literally, out of thin air.

Because the two carburetors in this exclusive

Buick feature handle a larger air volume than can be provided efficiently by a single mixer.

They let us step up compression pressure, which increases power—that in turn permits a more economical rear axle gear ratio, which gives more miles per gallon!

We'll let you figure out what all this means in extra fun, extra thrills, extra satisfaction.

We'll let you size up, too, how nice it is to travel farther more pleasantly—on as much as 10% to 15% less gasoline than former Buicks used.

But for the whole picture, just go get actual, local, delivered prices on a Buick.

You'll find that nowhere else can you buy the same size, the same style, the same power, the same comfort at the same low bargain Buick figures.

†Available at slight extra cost on some Buick SPECIAL models, standard on all other Series.

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $915 FOR THE BUSINESS COUPE

Eugene Carle Tells Kiwanians About Deep Sea Diving

Former Glasco Man Shows Equipment and Gives Talk on Technique of 'Going Under'

Eugene J. Carle, former Glasco man and since the close of the World War a diver by profession, entertained the members of Kiwanis Thursday noon at the Governor Clinton Hotel with an enlightening talk on the technique of diving and the perils and difficulties encountered by those who make their livelihood by working underneath the surface of the water.

Carle also showed diving equipment and explained some of the great improvements made during recent years, particularly in the construction and equipment of the headpiece. Mr. Carle showed the old style headpiece, originated perhaps 40 to 50 years ago and which he had used for 20 years himself, with its poor lighting and absence of "spigots" for releasing excess air pressure. He then demonstrated the standard U. S. Navy "hat" with its better lighting facilities, telephone equipment and other improvements which, said he, would allow a diver to save himself to-day when he could not have done so years ago.

Ocean pressures were explained and the necessity of a diver being "decompressed" after working in depths lower than 50 feet. Thus, it was stated that after working an hour at a depth of 100 feet it was necessary to take an hour in coming to the surface, in order to permit the body to get rid of the compressed air which it had absorbed.

Physical Condition Stressed
It was explained that salvage operations were out of the question in many cases, because of depth or other reasons. Ordinarily a depth of around 125 feet is the limit. Divers must be in good physical condition and must be adapted to the work. Mr. Carle said that personally he could not stand work in deep water, 50 or 60 feet being about his limit. The use of helium has proved a great help to divers and will allow working 40 minutes at a depth of 200 feet whereas without it 20 minutes would be the limit.

In answer to questions the speaker said that in sea water there is darkness below 25 feet or so and that any distance down the water is cold and the temperature more or less stationary, regardless of what it may be above. The average diving outfit, such as was shown, weighs around 180 pounds and a complete outfit costs in the neighborhood of $3,500.

His First Experience
Mr. Carle's first experience in diving was when he was about 14 years of age. He had been employed by the Hutton Brick Co. and gone on one of the boats to New York, when strike tied up business. He got a job as an errand boy with the Foundation Co. wreckers, dock builders, etc. (the Rifton dam was one of their jobs) and eventually got a chance to go down. The result was a hemorrhage that sent him to the hospital and he was advised not to try again until he was older. In 1917 he enlisted in the 27th Division and was wounded near St. Mihiel. Returning home he took up diving in 1919 and for five years was employed at the Island Dock. Since then he has been "on his own." Of late he has been confining himself to the less strenuous jobs, although he still works at his profession.

At the business meeting resolution submitted by Albany Kiwanis opposing the St. Lawrence waterway project because of tremendous injury to New York state transportation, business and labor and because it is in no sense a defense measure, was voted on. Result of the vote was not announced, but from general comment members appeared to be unanimously opposed to the project.

Jason Stockbridge reported that the committee on vocational guidance had sponsored a series of talks at the Myron J. Michael School by persons representing 15 fields of work.

Members were urged to attend the 20th anniversary and ladies night dinner party of Newburgh Kiwanis Thursday night, May 22. The affair will be informal.

Guests Thursday were J. Allan Wood, Edwin T. Strong, E. J. Hillis and Harold O'Connor of Kingston and Al Wagner of Chicago.

Meagher, vice chairman; Mrs. William Buddenhagen, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Vincent Connolly, recording secretary, and Mrs. Harry Yale, treasurer.

The meeting scheduled for June 17 has been advanced to Tuesday, May 22, at which time Mrs. A. L. Berwin will lead the "Family Life" meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel at 2 o'clock.

Victory Celebration Is To Be Held Here May 30

Ulster County Council Sponsors Affair in Honor of Region's Fete Winner

Queen Betty Barnmann and her court are to be honored by a gigantic victory celebration to be held at the municipal auditorium on Memorial Day night, May 30.

For the first time in history an Ulster county girl has been chosen Apple Blossom Queen of the Hudson Valley and the Ulster County Council is sponsoring the affair as a tribute to all who cooperated in making the festival just past a success. According to an announcement by Al Kurdt of the Farm Bureau, this is the first year that the festival has finished in the black—another cause for victory.

Jack Bennett has been appointed in charge of production and already many of the details have been worked out. Mr. Bennett promises an even more elaborate show than was presented by the Christmas Cheer Barn Dance last winter.

All talent wishing to contribute their services should contact Mr. Bennett at once. He can be reached by phoning Kingston, 1914.

It is believed that by holding the affair on Memorial Day a large crowd of tourists and boarders can be attracted as well as our local neighbors. Tickets to this gala affair will be nominally priced.

Food Prices Cause Increase in Living

Washington, May 16 (AP)—

The cost of living has gone up 3.7 per cent since August, 1939, the month before the war in Europe began, the labor department reported today.

Largely because of higher food prices, the cost of living jumped one per cent from mid-March to mid-April.

The department noted that food prices have shown a moderate but steady advance since last November and now are about five per cent higher than last autumn.

Sugar prices were reported up seven per cent since April, 1940, reflecting uncertainty over shipping facilities, and some other food items have jumped 10 and 20 per cent over the year.

State Will Ask 'Positive Action'

Discrimination in Defense Employment Is Topic of Federal Parley

Albany, N. Y., May 16 (AP)—State officials, concerned over "unreasonable discriminatory employment practices" reported in defense industries, planned today to consult federal authorities at Washington for "positive action."

"We are particularly concerned with two forms of discrimination which are common in this country today," said Frieda S. Miller, state industrial commissioner and chairman of Governor Lehman's committee on employment discrimination. "The first bars from defense employment many citizens of Italian and German extraction even though they have unquestionably proven their complete loyalty to this country. The second makes it difficult for qualified negroes and Jews to secure defense jobs."

"Both are contributing toward disunity," she added, "at a time when common objectives and national unity must be paramount." The commissioner said the committee hopes to work out "constructive proposals" with federal authorities and added "after factual inquiry, the committee may find it desirable to seek modification of existing legislation or regulations."

A 1941 state law bans discrimination because of race, color or religion in New York's defense industries.

Fort Hancock Men Defeat Theoretical Invader in Games

'Defenders' Mow Down Men From Submarines Who 'Attack' Unprotected Monmouth

Fort Hancock, N. J., May 16 (AP)—Some 3,500 coast artillerymen fought today to drive back into the sea a theoretical enemy invading force which landed from submarines in a drive against unfortified Fort Monmouth, 15 miles from here.

The "defenders," composed of men from the 4th, 52nd, 245th Coast Artillery and the 125th Service Company, battled throughout the night after "landing parties" came ashore yesterday as part of a coast artillery field maneuver.

As Hancock's sharpshooters and anti-aircraft gunners engaged the enemy, Fort Monmouth's signal corps personnel enjoy a night's sleep. Their services were not required in the maneuver.

Coast artillerymen were given no warning that the "invasion" impended. Second Corps Area headquarters on Governor's Island, N. Y., flashed the word that enemy submarine had been sighted heading for New York harbor at 2:40 p. m.

Floating Target Spotted

Shore batteries here and at Fort Tilden at Rockaway, N. Y., were trained, but not fired, on a floating target which represented the submarines.

With notification that the enemy had landed, 150 gunners supported by 2,000 troops sped across country to the defense of Fort Monmouth.

War games also occupied 12,000 troops of the 4th division at Fort Dix. The 57th Brigade defeated the 87th brigade in a combat exercise conducted between Lakewood and Burlington.

Gun crews of the 157th Field Artillery, manning 75 millimeter guns, were to get their first experience with moving targets today on the new anti-tank range.

Forty-fourth Division headquarters announced a list of officers to report to the Fort Benning, Ga., infantry school for the rifle and heavy weapon course which runs from May 21 to August 15. It includes First Lieutenant Jack McAllister, White Plains, N. Y., 113th Infantry, and Capt. Alexander J. Komancsek, Yonkers, N. Y., 71st Infantry.

Parachutist Snared in Practice Leap

He was rescued later by the crew of a Navy "hell-diver" plane which flew close to the transport and took him aboard in a daring maneuver.

Publicity 'Date' Brings Out Squad To End Near Riot

Hollywood Starlet Is Given Barrage of Oranges at Cambridge in Honor of Harvard Boys

Cambridge, Mass., May 16 (AP)—Forced to beat a retreat under a barrage of oranges thrown at her by Harvard students, Marjorie Woodworth, Hollywood movie starlet, later returned early today and attended the Harvard Lampon's annual ball.

The staff of the undergraduate magazine attributed the fruit throwing to factions envious of the Lampon.

Reaching near riot proportions at times with fist fights and the hurling of beer cans back and forth amongst students in the streets, the demonstration caused the Cambridge police to send their juvenile delinquency squad into action in a move to restore order.

Three Lampon building windows, dedicated to members of the staff killed in the World War were broken by missiles.

Miss Woodworth, a blonde bearing some resemblance to the late Jean Harlow, arrived at the Lampon building at about 11 p. m.

Two Lampon escorts braved the barrage to enter the building but her publicity agent, also riding in the car, refused to permit her to follow. None of the missiles hit the actress.

The car drove away, and with students still milling about the front entrance when it returned shortly after 1 a. m. Miss Woodworth was taken into the building through a rear entrance.

On her arrival at South Station in Boston earlier in the day, she received a bouquet of roses from Cole J. Phinizy of Ventnor, N. J., editor of the Lampon staff, gave him a big kiss and said Harvard boys were "plenty all right."

New York, May 15 (Special)—Sabatino Molinari and Lawrence Lorenzano were indicted by a Federal Grand Jury here today on charges of operating an illicit still at the premises of Frank Sanicola on Tuckers Corners road, Plattekill.

The men will be arraigned for pleading before Judge Murray Hulbert soon.

Two Navy Fliers Who Rescued Dangling Pal May Get Medals

Principals in Unusual Feat Declare It Was Only Routine, but Others Think Differently

San Diego, Calif., May 16 (AP)—Two naval aviators who snatched a marine parachutist from death in mid-air may receive the Navy cross for what superior officers described as the most remarkable rescue in aviation history.

The fliers, Lieut. W. W. Lowrey, 34, of Dallas, Tex., and Aviation Machinist's Mate J. R. McCants, 41, of Jordan, Mont., looked lightly on their spectacular feat. "Any experienced navy pilot could have done it," Lowrey said.

But others differed, particularly Marine Lieut. Walter S. Osipoff, 23, Akron, Ohio. He knew that were it not for Lowrey's skill and daring and for McCants' bravery and strength, his life would have been forfeit when he leaped with his parachute from a marine transport plane over a navy landing field yesterday.

The automatic 'chute release somehow failed to function. The static line snarled and left Osipoff dangling head down, below and aft the big plane.

Passengers still aboard found they couldn't haul him back, and Capt. M. Johnson, pilot, headed for the field to draw attention to the parachutist's plight.

Test Pilots Take Off

Lowrey and McCants, test pilots who had never flown together before, noticed Osipoff's predicament. They hurried into a navy biplane dive-bomber and took off in pursuit of the transport. Far out over the ocean and up to 1,500 feet they went, for the air over land was too rough for the precise flying their rescue plan entailed.

Slowly the smaller plane nudged up under the larger. Within 20 feet of the transport's tail assembly, Pilot Lowrey held his ship, while McCants reached over the side and hauled Osipoff in—as much as he could, considering the cockpit wouldn't hold two men.

Then Lowrey pointed the nose of his plane directly at the lines attaching Osipoff to the transport and with a slice of the propeller snipped them through. Such close work did the maneuver require that the propeller ticked the bottom of the passenger ship and broke away a piece of metal.

There were still ticklish moments. The partly opened chute cut free, flared over the front of Lowrey's cockpit and, until at last it blew backward, blinded the flier.

"We didn't know where we were for a while," the lieutenant said. McCants, too, had his difficulties. The force of the propeller slipstream against Osipoff's partly exposed body, and the drag of the chute, to which the marine was still attached, set up such a pull that navy officers said it must have required "superhuman strength" to hold the rescued man aboard.

Roosevelt's Direct Bid to French People Is Enough to Show What Alliance Means

Move Is Explained

Vichy Quarters Report Pétain Acted to Gain Time

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE (Freeman Special News Service)

France's new move toward collaboration with her Nazi conquerors — a sensation boldly punctuated by the disclosure that Germany is occupying French mandated Syria and already using its airdromes for operations against Britain — represents a grim development for the allies.

It means more than that, for Washington has labeled it as a potential menace to the western hemisphere. President Roosevelt's appeal to the French people, over the head of the Vichy government, to reject collaboration with Nazism, clearly marks the gravity of the position.

While Marshal Pétain, French chief of state, yesterday announced extension of cooperation with Nazism, there remains some question as to whether he actually approved of the use of Syrian territory by the Germans. If he did so he abandoned one of his foremost policies — that of compelling Hitler to keep hands off the French colonies.

British Foreign Minister Anthony Eden yesterday charged that Pétain's apparent intention granted the Nazis transit rights in Syria. Should this prove to be true it will mean that a tired old man, bowed by the weight of his eighty-five years, finally has succumbed to German pressure, which has been as unrelenting as the third degree.

Sought to Gain Time

Certain French quarters in Vichy say that Pétain has made some concessions in order to gain time. The dogged fight which the old gentleman has made to preserve the integrity of his colonies might lend some substance to that idea.

However, the fact remains that strategically important Syria has gone by the board and is now a moving mountain to threaten the safety of the allies in the Near East. If this is an indication that Pétain may grant similar privileges to the Nazis in France's African possessions, it represents a position of the utmost concern to the allies.

This is a thing which Britain has feared all along. Should the marshal throw his colonies open to Hitler, it would provide the Germans with eagerly sought bases for operations which would threaten the British control of the entire Mediterranean. That would be an allied catastrophe.

And if the Nazis were able to secure the naval base of Dakar on the West coast of Africa, they could strike heavily from there against the trans-Atlantic shipping routes. That would give Hitler another powerful link for the counter-blockade with which he is trying to strangle Britain.

Must Turn to Weygand

If Pétain really is succumbing to Hitler's onslaught, then allied hope must turn in the direction of General Weygand, commander of the French colonial possessions. Weygand is Pétain's man, and has supported the chief of state through thick and thin. However, he has always stood for the welfare of his country and there must be some question whether he would surrender colonial privileges to the Germans under any circumstances.

Should it appear that the Nazis are to be allowed to use the colonies as bases, then it is difficult to see how Britain can refrain from strong measures to protect herself. Already she has signified that she will carry the fight to the Germans in Syria, and one would expect her also to act to prevent Nazi occupation of France's other colonies, and in particular against German seizure of Dakar.

It wouldn't be strange to see another allied naval expedition against Dakar — this time in sufficient force to carry out occupation.

Meanwhile the battle of the eastern Mediterranean is boiling up, with the Germans occupying Syria and using its airdromes as staging posts for the aid of Iraq in its revolt against Britain. Freedom in Syria has given Hitler exactly what he needed to get ahead with his business in the Near East without challenging a Turkey which he doesn't want to fight.

MRS. CHARLES TERWILLIGER

Mrs. William S. Simmons, Miss Isabelle Swartwout and Mrs. Walter T. Tremper.

The regent, Mrs. Terwilliger, called attention to Sunday, May 18, being Citizenship Day, and invited the chapter to celebrate the day by attending the patriotic service Sunday morning at the First Reformed Church. She also reminded the members of the custom of the chapter to attend in a body the morning service at the First Reformed Church on Memorial Day Sunday, May 25, after which a special service will be held in the church yard in memory of the revolutionary soldiers buried there.

Miss Idella Hyde presented the chapter with a beautiful, old bowl expressed its appreciation.

The regent invited chapter members to attend the Hudson Valley Conference of D. A. R. chapters in Kingston, Wednesday, June 4. Basket luncheons brought by those attending will be enjoyed at 12 o'clock. Wiltwyck Chapter will serve ice-cream and coffee. Mrs. Mills and Mrs. Inglis were appointed as chairmen.

"It was also announced that Wiltwyck Chapter has been honored in the appointment by the state regent of Mrs. Mills as state chairman of the New York State Cottage at Tamassee.

The program for the afternoon consisted of reports from the Continental Congress held in Washington, D. C., April 13 to 19. The regent reported that 4,000 women attended the opening meeting. The main speaker of the evening was Neville Butler, minister of Great Britain. His subject, "The Price of Liberty" set the keynote for the convention. He felt that if the mounting passion for liberty in Britain can be snatched by an equal intensity of feeling here, nothing that the might or craft of the enemy can do need cause any fear.

Mrs. Roscoe O. Byrne, national chairman of Good Citizenship Pilgrimage, presented 49 good citizenship pilgrims one from each state and one from the District of Columbia. A check for $1,200 was presented to Mr. Butler by a San Francisco chapter of 47 members for an ambulance for England.

Mrs. Terwilliger also included in her report the luncheon for the New York state delegates, a meeting on National Defense which was attended by all the Wiltwyck Chapter Delegates.

Mrs. Lancelot Phelps reported on the pageant that reviewed the history of the D. A. R., which was enacted by 200 persons. Mrs. Phelps also reported on the address on "Democracy in World Revolution" given by the Rev. Edward A. Walsh, and one on "Radio in National Defense" given by H. V. Kaltenborn.

Mrs. G. N. Wood gave the concluding report on the Continental Congress, telling the members of the address by Mrs. Henry M. Roberts in which she said "The D. A. R. is now hailed as the pioneer of Americanism in combating un-American activities and promoting a constructive program of education for citizenship for the foreign born." Mrs. Wood also reported upon several resolutions passed at the convention; that all persons in public pay be required to take an oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States and that un-American books in the schools be carefully examined and eliminated and a copy of the flag code be given with every flag sold. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served. Hostesses for the afternoon were Mrs. C. Victor Livingston and Mrs. Lancelot Phelps.

An ostrich feather trails from the tiny satin derby.

Wedding Gowns of Past Years to Be Shown at Katsbaan

A Briday Festival, featuring wedding gowns of other years, will be held Tuesday, June 3, at 2:30 o'clock on the lawn of the Katsbaan Reformed Church parsonage. The festival, under the auspices of the Katsbaan Ladies' Aid Society, is open to the public. A large crowd is anticipated.

Music will play a leading role in the festival with solos by Roland Heermance of Saugerties, accompanied by Mrs. Eleanor Smith Porter of Liberty. Another added attraction will be a pantomime of a 1941 wedding.

For the wedding gown parade more than 25 bridal gowns have been offered for display. Many of these gowns are being loaned by interested friends to add to those contributed by the women of the Katsbaan church.

On parade will be the Van Vlieden gown dating back to 1784 and supposed to be the oldest wedding gown in the Hudson Valley. Two of the old gowns that were displayed at the Catskill Fortnightly Club Wedding Parade in 1939, will be modeled by Mrs. C. A. W. Beach and Mrs. Perry Magee of Catskill.

Mrs. Harvey Todd of Woodstock and Mrs. Eugene Duray of Blue Mountain are also loaning their gowns.

Mrs. Harold Davis of Hurley will model the wedding gown of her mother, Mrs. George B. Snyder.

The names of other interested friends as well as those of the Katsbaan women whose gowns will be exhibited will appear at a future date.

Tea will be served. Quilts and hand embroidered linens will be on sale.

TIMES HAVE NOT CHANGED SO THAT BRIDES ARE NOT EXPECTED TO WRITE THANKS FOR PRESENTS

The "news" that one of my readers sends me is not very flattering to the good manners of the younger generation, and I am sorry to say that the complaint made is becoming all too familiar. However, to quote this particular letter: "Several weeks ago I sent two wedding presents to two young brides. Neither one has thanked me. At first I thought that they were both away on their honeymoons and would write in time. Since then, friends have told me that the younger generation has now become so casual that they think there is no obligation to thank people who send them presents. I can not believe that this is an accepted change of today. I would very much like to hear your opinion."

In answer I can say in the first place, that it is not an accepted change of today. Moreover, I think that in spite of occasional complaints there are comparatively few brides who do not try to sit down and write thank-you notes just as soon as they can. In fact, I rather wonder whether in your case the brides have had time to answer. That is, if your presents arrived at the last minute, it would be unreasonable to expect notes until after they return home from their wedding trips.

I really think it unlikely that both these brides will be so rude as to send no letters of thanks. An occasional one, somewhere at some time, yes. But two together—not likely. The truth is that rudeness is so unusual that we hear of such a case over and over. A certain one who sent no thanks has, to my knowledge, been talked about for fifteen years! Anyway, I hope your letters will arrive soon—and I hope still more that no bride believes she can show rudeness to well-wishing friends and "get away with it!"

How Much Silver Necessary?
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary always to put a knife at each place even though it may not be necessary for the menu?

Answer: Without at least one knife at the right and one fork at the left, the place would be unset. The early family breakfast table is the only one that is set with the implements necessary, and none extra. For late breakfast (at noon or half-after) the table setting is either the same as for lunch or else for supper.

A Dinner Napkin
Dear Mrs. Post: Is it correct to hem a dinner napkin on all four sides, or are the selvage edges to be left?

Answer: The two selvage edges are left as they are—unless the napkin is to be hemstitched. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

So many requests have been made for copies of my article on details concerned with training camps (behavior of visitors and presents for the men), that I have had it printed as a leaflet and will be very glad to send it to anyone who sends me a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent), envelope in care of the Kingston Daily Freeman.

Long-Waisted One-Piece Dress

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9720

Satisfy that "urge to be different" by making this charming style! A Marian Martin design, Pattern 9720, is so easy to wear that it has almost no age limit. Both the new long-waisted look and a two-piece effect are given by the low hipline seaming and by the button-opening or button trim down the front bodice. There's all the softness you need through the bustline in gracefully curved, full-cut side bodice sections that are held-in by shoulder darts and above-the-waist gathers. And for a delightfully feminine effect, the low V-neck is shaped in merry scallops. Even the back has unusual flattery in graceful bodice paneling. You may wish to try the center-front bodice sections in a bold, brave contrast!

Pattern 9720 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3 yards 39 inch fabric.

You Have the Equipment For Singing Beautifully

Exercises Transform Your Voice

Yes, you can have the thrill of singing well! And it is a thrill to feel your voice pouring out melody—to know you are delighting your listeners.

Just give your vocal equipment a chance to work. You can teach yourself how to do it. If your voice is squeaky or weak now, it's probably because you've only half-used your lungs, sung with tight throat muscles. You can quickly learn to use them properly. Half-shout the word "Hay!" See how your abdomen contracts, forces air from your lungs to your throat? That's how, in singing, you "feed" breath to your voice.

Now take air into your lungs and in the middle of your voice sing "Hay." Hold the pitch, then carry the tone as high as you can without straining—and release that tone. Practice this exercise a while and tense throat muscles relax.

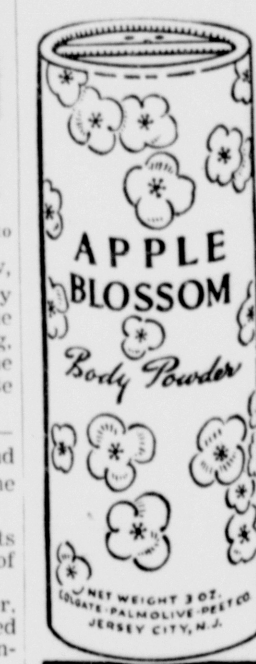

Other simple exercises give your voice resonance, smoothness. Soon you're really singing!

Our new 32-page booklet teaches you in step-by-step lessons to use your voice naturally, melodiously. Gives many exercises for lungs, throat muscles, resonators.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of TEACH YOURSELF TO SING to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Someday I'll Find You

Chapter 28 Action—By Eileen

VIOLETTA LEE sat at her kidney-shaped desk, in the rose-tinted house-coat her youngest sister-in-law had given her for her last birthday, quietly writing long-hand letters as if nothing had happened. Her faded Gainsborough prettiness was more haggard than usual, that was all. She was as poised as Eileen poured out her story.

She said, amazingly, when it was done, "Well, my dear, it is a great comfort to me to know that I was right about you."

"Then you do believe me? You do believe I didn't know what I was doing to you?"

"I've been judging people, as part of my profession, for twenty years. I know you're honest."

"Couldn't I go to some of the board members—couldn't a lot of us?"

The graying ash-blond head was shaken.

"Mr. Delevan would make it seem mere hysterical feminine partisanship. You know what a power that spellbinding earnestness of his has." She frowned a little. "Mother's really what bothers me most. She wouldn't be happy with any of the others; she loves them, but the children get on her nerves."

"Is there nothing I can do? Nothing anybody can do?"

Miss Lee said thoughtfully, "If old James L. Willson were living, I'd have no hesitation in going to him over the heads of the board. Or if I could, I'd reach his daughter. But I hear she's been in South America organizing suffrage groups ever since she went there with the Pan-American Congress. And young Dane is completely in Delevan's hands, from all they say, even if he were interested."

"You know he married, very spectacularly, a few months back; one of those freak marriages. A girl from a share cropper's farm or the lower East Side or something like that. They were in Honolulu at their honeymoon, but they're West somewhere, nobody knows exactly where, at present."

Eileen said in a carefully steady voice, "What has Martin Dane to do with it?"

But as she asked, everything clicked together, Lewis saying, "I was Martin's secretary a year ago. Now I run the Willson Institute." Martin, saying, "Lewis handles my charities much better than I could. Lewis was my tutor..." And "Pretty wonderful really, slight Messiah complex."

"And Lewis again, 'Martin's an easy-going idiot.'"

Martin Dane, Martin had some sort of control of the institute. Because James L. Willson had been his grandfather. And of course—Edith Willson Dane was his mother. But he left everything to Lewis because he believed in Lewis. Or didn't care. Or both.

Even if she could find him now he was tied up to Caroline. She would have to creep back, to take Caroline's insults, Martin's own pleading, Lewis' boredom. It was the hardest thing she had ever faced—which under the circumstances was neither here nor there.

She stood up, saying to Miss Lee, "I knew Martin Dane once. I'm going to try every way I know to get hold of him. Don't give up hope."

"This Is Martin"

THERE was a pay-station box downstairs. And she still kept something which perhaps three other people possessed, the private number of Martin's apartment. She might be able to do something with the manservant, William. She dialed, setting her teeth, bracing. Oh, don't let it be Caroline!

It was William's smooth, courteous voice. She used the phrases she had planned.

"Some business has come up that makes it necessary for me to get in touch with Mr. Dane. William, can you help me? This is Mrs. Gardner Dane."

He did not hang up. He said the conventional, "One moment, madam." Her wet hand clenched the receiver as she waited.

"This is Martin, Eileen."

The slow pleasant voice was as unmoved as William's. Well, after all, what was she to him, that he should be even surprised? She said, striving for the same coolness. There's something—It isn't about me, Miss Lee at the Willson—Violetta. They've discharged her... Your grandfather—Oh, please—

The incoherent words seemed to make sense to him. He said, "Discharge Violetta? Crazy. Thanks for telling me. Want to come up here and give me the details?"

"Oh no... unless it's the only way I can see you—"

"Well, as a matter of fact I'm not alone here, it might be better elsewhere." (Caroline.) "Anywhere you say." "I don't suppose you'd want me to drop in at the Willson in business hours—"

"How did you know?" "My spies are everywhere," said the old amused voice. "Tell you what, I'll pick you up in the car. We can talk and drive. O.K."

"O.K."

"It wasn't, but she couldn't be a chooser."

She told him where she was. She smoothed her brown curls, used her vanity before the lobby mirror, as she waited. Then stood up, by the curb as she had told him she would, and let the spring wind blow her to pieces again, staring east for his car.

She must try to keep herself out of it entirely. Be short and businesslike and convincing. She tried to arrange phrases as she stood leaning forward, her tight little short-skirted blue suit blown against her.

He came from the other direction after all. His hand on her arm made her jump. He stood above her, tall, bareheaded, smiling pleasantly. He had on the blue pullover and gray slacks she remembered, an overcoat slung on his shoulders. He said, "Hello, kid, nice spring morning."

"Hello, Martin. Thanks a lot. I won't keep you long."

"All the time in the world. Here, you'll need this." It was her own big sports leopard. Trousseau stuff, bought in those few days before they went to Honolulu. Left at the apartment. Better not be too silly and independent to take it. It would paw. She let him slip it over her tight blue pullover and gray slacks she remembered, an overcoat slung on his shoulders. He said, "Hello, kid, nice spring morning."

She found the beret and pulled it on, still in silence. He helped her into the car.

It was a sports model she did not remember; long, gray, oddly shaped. It slid round the block and west on the cross street toward the nearest Riverside ingress. The wind was sharp from the Hudson. As he had said, he was glad of the big furry coat. He spoke again, when they were nearly at the Henry Hudson toll gate.

The Story

"Well, what about Violetta?" "Did you know her?"

"She used to do secretarial extras for my mother, ages ago. By the way, Mother's back from South America."

"Oh—is she?" (If she'd known that, Violetta could have seen Mrs. Dane herself. All this would have been spared. Never mind.)

She forced herself to speak, shortly and quietly.

"The institute is firing Violetta. It shouldn't. It's partly my fault. I'm just one of those fools that mess everything up."

(There, she'd dragged herself in.)

Martin said, grinning, "I wouldn't say that. But things do seem to start up when you drop in. Go on."

She stumbled on with her story. Lewis' training, Lewis' idea of making her report on her personal relations with everybody. And Lewis, finally, using her information to throw Miss Lee out. Saying frankly that it was a bad dog, that he was doing it because Miss Lee was dangerously approved and admired by influential members of the board.

She tried to blame Lewis as little as possible. But as she talked, she realized that, Lewis being so much closer to Martin than poor Violetta, it all sounded, just the same, as Violetta had said it would, like the resentment of a couple of women with a hysterical persecution complex. And was therefore perfectly futile.

"But she is honest," Eileen pleaded. "She hasn't an intention or hope of undermining Lewis."

And she's never saved as she should because of having this passion for doing for her family. Her mother is old and sick and fussy. I don't say that, but I guess she'd rather have given to a husband and children of her own."

"That's not economics exactly, Eileen."

"But this is," Eileen said. "She's close to fifty, and the higher up your job is the harder it is for you to get another. I've heard them say it about people like her. Nowhere to go but off."

Martin let another silence fall as they flew up the Bronx Parkway Extension. He still drove like a highly capable bat out of hell.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

Former President William Howard Taft delivered an interesting address on the World War situation at the Kingston High School in May, 1917. He lectured here under the auspices of the junior class of the high school.

The proceeds of the lecture which had originally been planned to use for a trip to Washington were turned over to the local Red Cross.

The former president spoke to an audience of a thousand and was introduced by Judge A. T. Clearwater.

Wednesday evening, May 23, Kingston's Rotary Club celebrated its first anniversary with a birthday party and dinner at the West Shore Hotel with prominent Rotarians as speakers from Albany and New York. There were also present delegations of Rotarians from Newburgh and Troy who aided the local Rotarians to properly observe the event.

An organization that is still active in the social and civic life of the community is the Federation of Women's Clubs and at the annual meeting held in May, 1917, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Hyman Roosa as president; Mrs. Richard E. Bell, first vice president; Mrs. Clara Norton Reed, second vice president; Mrs. Harry Winne, recording secretary; Mrs. A. Ray Powley, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Joseph M. Fowler as treasurer.

And speaking of the days before the first World War I wonder how many of the older readers recall the old stock companies that used to play a week's engagement in the local theatres.

The standard price of admission was 10, 20 and 30 cents. These stock companies were known as "the tens, twenties and thirties" taken from the scale of admission prices. There were always talented members of the company who appeared between the acts of the melodramas presented. I recall one comedian, although I have forgotten his name. He got off a joke that I still remember even after the passing of 30 or more years.

Said the comedian to his audience "I used to live in Port Ewen but I was getting so thin that I decided to move over here to 'Round out.' That was from the stage of the old Liscomb theatre, now the Orpheum."

Another remark that I recall with a smile was made annually by Tim Hannon, a motorman on the old trolley road. In the early days of the fall each year Motorman Tim would remark to the patrons of his trolley car when they said "it's a fine day."

"Yep" replied Tim "the leaves are leaving."

(This is the first of a series of three articles on the farmer and national defense. What the war, national defense and the lend-lease program are doing to the American farmer is one of the strangest paradoxes in this strange of all world situations.

On one hand, the real or potential world markets which mean the difference between a fair living and poverty to the growers of our "surplus" crops (principally cotton, tobacco and wheat) have been wiped out.

On the other hand, such a demand for other farm products is being created that it is quite possible thousands of American farmers are entering a new era. It won't be an era of "sky's-the-limit" prosperity, but officials believe it should be one of decent living and fair return. And if the Department of Agriculture carries out its present aims, this era won't be followed by black depression, dust storms and starving Joads such as came in the wake of the World War.

Surpluses Piling Up

To take the gloomy side first: In recent years about half of some of our types of tobacco, 20 per cent of our cotton, 20 to 50 per cent of some fruits and five per cent of our wheat were sold abroad.

Normally about 2,000,000 farm folk depended for their livelihood on farm products sold to continental Europe and another 2,000,000 dependent on farm products sold to the United Kingdom.

According to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, the value of farm products exported in the six months ending in February of this year amounted to only $155,000,000—compared with $489,000,000 in the corresponding six months a year earlier. Until just recently, farm exports continued to hang around that all-time low level to which they plunged soon after the collapse of France a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Terwilliger and son, Bobbie and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Terwilliger visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Huttemeyer in Jamaica, L. I., Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. A. E. Garlock entertained the "Jolly Eight" pinochle club Tuesday evening at her home and Mrs. J. A. Crowell the bridge club on Thursday afternoon.

The Legion Auxiliary will hold the last of their series of card parties Friday, May 23, at the post rooms. A door prize and the high score prize of the series will be awarded at this time. The committee in charge is Mrs. Walter Harris, Mrs. Samuel Bowden, Mrs. Fred Lawrence, Mrs. C. E. Coswell.

The county meeting of the Legion and auxiliary will also be held in Walkill, May 26. This evening at 7:30 o'clock the last mid-week worship service will be held in the Reformed church until the fall.

Mrs. L. C. Edsall will be hostess to the Woman's Bible Study class next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mice Test Upper Air

Mice are being set up in balloons by Kope, Japan, scientists to find out what kind of germs inhabit the sub-stratosphere. Slightly chloroformed, to be better able to stand the experience, the mice are floated to a height of 1,000 feet. Five or 10 mice are left suspended in the atmosphere from five to six hours. Then the balloons are lowered and the mice examined to discover the kinds of germs they have absorbed. The tests are carried on by the Kope Hygienic Experimentation Station to determine the varieties of germs in the air.

He Guns For Planet

People at Salamaua, Papua, are laughing at a government official who charted a plane and tried to shoot down the planet Venus. Residents thought they saw a large balloon floating 18,000 feet above the town in full daylight. Led by the official, a party went up in a plane to bring down the strange aircraft, but at 13,000 feet it disappeared in a cloudbank. Meantime, an amateur astronomer, with a telescope, identified the balloon as the planet Venus.

Sox Performing Amazing Tricks In Junior League

Denny Galehouse, Browns, Hurl One-Hitter to Win by 7-0; Dykes Hangs Up Glove After 22 Years

(By The Associated Press) The Chicago White Sox are performing tricks again in the American League, hovering around second place with a collection of castoffs while other star-studded clubs wallow in despair.

Their aging pitchers have surpassed the staffs of every other team in both majors by hurling 17 complete games out of 24 played, in spite of hit-and-miss help from their teammates.

The Sox have played errorless ball in only four of their contests, and their inconspicuous hitting has caused nine of their 14 victories to come through a one-run wringer.

Their lineup includes Joe Kuhel and Taft Wright, a couple of pickups from the Washington Senators; Dario Lodigiani, a throwaway by the Philadelphia Athletics; Billy Knickerbocker, cast-off utility infielder of the New York Yankees; Myril Hoag, who was passed around by both the Yanks and St. Louis Browns, and other derelicts.

But this conglomerate cast has abiding faith in Manager James Joseph Dykes, and ability to rise to the occasion.

Yesterday was an occasion—the retirement of their brash, swashbuckling leader as a player after 22 years on the active list of the American League. He hadn't played in a game since 1939 and, at 44 years of age, is growing portly and bald. However this last concession of time, removal from the playing roster, was an event—and the Sox celebrated.

Hit Three Homers They whipped out a 14-hit offensive and sent the once-proud Yankees crashing to their fifth straight defeat, 13-1. The Sox had made only five homers all season, but they belted three more as evidence of their enthusiasm—and Knickerbocker and Hoag, the former Yanks, each collected four hits.

Lefty Ed Smith, whom the Sox acquired at the waiver price in 1939, from the Athletics, pitched nine-hit ball and shut out his foes after the first inning.

The Cleveland Indians kept rolling with a 6-4 victory over the Boston Red Sox, with Bob Feller doing a ninth-inning relief chore. He was rushed in with two on and none out, and retired the side.

The Detroit Tigers broke their six-game losing streak by overwhelming the Athletics, 10-2, with a vicious 18-hit attack and the seven-hit hurling of young Hal Newhouse.

The St. Louis Browns shut out the Washington Senators, 7-0, with a sensational one-hit pitching performance by slender Dennis Galehouse, one of the pitchers the Browns bought from the Red Sox last winter. He had a potential no-hitter until Jim Bloodworth singled with two-out in the seventh.

Reds Lose to Phils Cincinnati's world champions went staggering to their fifth consecutive defeat, 5-4, at the hands of the Phillies in the first night game of the year. Gene Thompson blew up to give the National League tail-enders four runs in the ninth.

The Boston Braves bumped off the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, in a loose game played in 90-degree temperature. Seven pitchers gave 26 hits.

Hal Schumacher outpitched Claude Passeau, six hits to eight, and led the New York Giants to a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were kept idle by wet grounds at Pittsburgh.

Case Heard in Irish

Conducted entirely in the Irish language, a case was heard recently by Judge Davis in the Dublin Circuit Court. The plaintiff was the Gaelic League which applied for possession of a room at the branch office of the League, Mr. Mary Purcell, the tenant, was behind in her rent and the Judge ordered her to move—all in Irish.

Reds Lose to Phils

Cincinnati's world champions went staggering to their fifth consecutive defeat, 5-4, at the hands of the Phillies in the first night game of the year. Gene Thompson blew up to give the National League tail-enders four runs in the ninth.

The Boston Braves bumped off the St. Louis Cardinals, 6-3, in a loose game played in 90-degree temperature. Seven pitchers gave 26 hits.

Hal Schumacher outpitched Claude Passeau, six hits to eight, and led the New York Giants to a 2-1 decision over the Chicago Cubs.

The Brooklyn Dodgers were kept idle by wet grounds at Pittsburgh.

Work of Mancuso Has Helped Card Rookie Pitchers

Handling of Pitchers Has Been Great Help to the Redbirds; Leads Team in Batting, .395

GUS MANCUSO

St. Louis, May 16 (AP)—It's been a long time since Gus Mancuso caught his first game for the St. Louis Cardinals back in 1928.

The little backstop—walking catalog of National League batting weaknesses—has played on five pennant winning teams since then. Now, he's back "home" and going stronger than ever—a veteran who is young again.

A lot of factors have combined to get the Cardinals away to a fast start in pursuit of their first pennant in seven years, but Mancuso's handling of rookie pitchers stands out above everything else in the Red Bird drive.

The youngsters—Sam Nahem, Young Grodzicki, Hank Gronicki, Howard Krist and Ernie White—have won eight decisions while dropping only two.

The reason for such a uniformly fine showing is really volunteered by one Cardinal hurler: "It's a little guy by the name of Gus Mancuso."

"Gus hasn't made a mistake yet," said the admiring. "He knows all the hitters in the league, and what he doesn't know isn't in the book."

Mancuso is leading the team with batting average of .395.

Wood's Augusta Victory Makes Him Strong Threat in Round-Robin

AP Feature Service

Flushing, N. Y.—The golfer who's "hot" in the Goodall Round Robin-tournament here May 22-25 will quickly be established as a favorite to win the National Open championship in Texas a fortnight later.

He'll be bracketed with such Southwesterners as Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl and Ben Hogan, who are familiar with the Texas courses.

After a brief rest from a strenuous winter campaign, the nation's top pro golfers have the Round Robin as their only major test before hurrying to Fort Worth for the scramble after Lawson Little's title.

Although prophecies in golf are considered more uncertain than those in most sports, experts regard as an even bet the prediction that the 1941 Open championship will come from the group of 15 professionals selected for the fourth annual $5,000 Round Robin tourney over the Fresh Meadow course.

Experts say that a few weeks of absolute idleness after a long series of big tournaments is more likely to cause a top flighter's game to crack wide open than an even longer rest period not preceded by tense tourney play.

That's why leading aspirants for the Open title regard the Round Robin as an excellent appetizer and warmer-upper for the big Fort Worth event.

The unusual type of competition in the Round Robin makes it both a medal and match play ordeal. Unlike orthodox match play, in which a contestant must watch only his opponent, each stroke of every other player in the field has a direct bearing on the eventual outcome of this four-day free-for-all. Matched in threesomes, with the lineups changing each round, one man literally plays against two opponents he can see and twelve others he can't see.

After four days, during which period each professional meets every other player, the contestant with the greatest aggregate of holes won is the victor.

Close watch will be kept on the 40-year-old veteran Craig Wood, who seems to have shaken off at last the runner-up complex which dogged his career for years. In winning the Augusta (Ga.) Masters' Tournament this spring with a 72-hole total of 280, one stroke over the tournament record, Wood displayed the same type of golf responsible for his all-time 72-hole tournament record of 264 in the 1940 Metropolitan Open championship.

Another favorite is the former Texan, Jimmy Demaret now professional at the Wee Burn Club, Noroton, Conn. Demaret has never had trouble on southern greens, but his northern debut in last year's Round Robin was disappointing. His showing on the 1940-41 winter circuit, however, has made him a highly regarded candidate.

Catholic Softball League

The Catholic Softball League opens its season tonight with St. Peter's and St. Mary's meeting at Block Park. Immaculate Conception will play Holy Name at Hasbrouck. St. Joseph's, last year's champs, will play St. Colman's of East Kingston at Loughran Park.

It is expected that Sawkill and St. Joseph's of Glasco will join the league next week. Due to the loss of several of their players through the draft, Presentations of Port Ewen were not able to enter a team this season.

The schedule will include Tuesday evenings at out of town parks and Friday's through the cooperation of the Kingston Recreation Department at Block, Barmann, Hasbrouck and Loughran Parks.

The Immaculate Conception softball team will open its season against Wilbur tonight at Hasbrouck Park. Game time is 6:45 o'clock.

Without the services of six of last year's regulars, the Poles are considerably weakened but according to their representative "not beaten." The army has taken on these six players.

After a series of practices the Immaculate Conception team appears to be ready for a good season. The club has the right balance of fielding and hitting power along with competent pitching.

The following line-up for tonight's game:
Immaculate Conception—Tatarzewski, 1b; Gill, 2b; Nolepur, 3b; Klonowski, ss; Alguini, cf; Van Buren, rf; Witkowski, lf; Kellerman, sf; Tomaszewski, c; and Demski, p. All players are requested to be at the field early.

Philadelphia, May 16 (AP)—Connie Mack, noting a drop in baseball attendance due to stepped up defense work, disclosed today a move for more night games to meet demands of fans.

He predicted the major leagues would get together in joint session within two weeks and lift a rule prohibiting more than seven nocturnal tilts at home a season.

"We may have 10, 14 or even more," declared the manager of the Athletics. "My suggestion to increase night games—voted down at the winter meeting—has been gaining momentum."

"Within the last few days I have talked to practically all the owners in our own league and I am sure a similar discussion has been going on in the National."

He hinted the possibility of definite developments tomorrow when Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis and other baseball notables gather here for a Connie Mack Day celebration.

14,000 Expected To See Jenkins Fight Montgomery

Bout at Garden Will Have
No Bearing on Texan's
Title; Match Will Be Broadcast Over WJZ

By SID FEDER

New York, May 16 (AP)—Laugh-
in Lew Jenkins goes to the post
against serious Bob Montgomery
in Madison Square Garden tonight to try to prove once again
that the best way to get ready for a fight is to play the juke box circuit on a motorcycle. The fight will be broadcast over WJZ at 10 o'clock.

Of course, this immediate 10-round tea party will pay for both of them, regardless, since they'll be cutting up the big end of an expected $40,000 gate, kindly contributed by a "house" of some 14-000 customers. And, if Montgomery wins he'll also have a chance to pick up some more change in a shot at Fritz Zivic's welterweight title.

Up to now, Lew has had the idea that training has something to do with climbing on and off railroad cars. He has been generally just a good-time guy, a lot like Harry Greb and Mickey Walker were when they were around showing a fighter could put pleasure before business and still come out ahead.

This corner likes Montgomery
to win.
From all indications, the fight
won't last long, once they come out swinging at 9 p. m. (E.S.T.)

Westchester Wins Golf

New York, May 16 (AP)—The team from Westchester (N. Y.)
county yesterday defeated Long Island and New Jersey to win
the Stoddard Bowl, emblematic
of this triangular golf team play annually since 1922. The Westchester squad piled up a total of 26
points to 24½ for Long Island
and 21½ for the New Jersey team,
which was defending the trophy
and was favored to repeat.

should consider the job his car's ator on the modern automobile, the major sources of electrical consumption: Lights and ignition, 18.5 amperes; car radio, 7.5 amperes; heater,

5 amperes; defroster, 3.5 amperes.

To these major sources of electrical consumption must be added
the drain of extra horns, stoplights,
direction indicators, clocks, cigar
lighters, spotlights, and fog lamps.

are tired of living in a town named after a dog. Dingo is the name of a breed of Australian dog and when mail arrives ad-

is too much like being called a name, they say. People of Cerato-dus, named after a lung fish, and those of Green Pigeon don't seem to resent their town names
so much.

Crespi, the Cardinal Creeper, Got Start on Softball Diamond

AP Feature Service

St. Louis—Come out of those dark doorways, you softball enthusiasts, all is not yet lost.

True, Lou Novikoff has let you down, at least on the basis of early returns. But the Clouting Cossack who failed to clout is not the only ex-softballer in big-time baseball.

This Creeper Crespi kid who's been banging the ball around in alarming fashion for the St. Louis Cardinals is a bona fide graduate of the softball diamonds.

Matter of fact, the 23-year-old second baseman's experience was all softball until 1935. He was a pitcher for a local city league team, didn't like baseball. When a friend of his, Tony Steins, needed
a catcher for his hardball outfit he asked Creeper (real name Frank)
to take a crack at it.

And it was a crisp crack Mr.
Crespi took. Creeper, and a few baseball scouts as well, did some eye-blinking when his 324
softball batting average soared
to .600 as an amateur baseballer.

The next year, '36, Creeper played in the St. Louis "muni" (for municipal) league and in 1937
he became a pro. It seems that the manager of the Shelby, N. C., state league club had known Creeper in his softball days. When he heard what Crespi did to hardball pitching he talked him into taking a paying fling at the sport.

Crespi hit .314 at Shelby and in 1938 went up to the Springfield, Mo., Cardinal farm club. The Cards put him on their roster in 1939 but he was something less than sensational as a fielder. They shipped him to Rochester and he moved on to finish the season with Columbus.

That short foray into the upper strata convinced the creeper
—he gets the name "Creeper"
because he's only five feet eight and does his cavorting pretty close to the ground—that there

FRANK CRESPI: A softbatter exclusively until 1935

were still things he could learn about baseball. He went to Cuba for the winter of 1939-40 to learn 'em on Cardinal Coach Mike Gonzales' team.

He reported to Rochester in 1940
with a new batting stance and new fielding confidence and finished the season with a .301 batting average and 86 runs-batted-in.

Billy Southworth took him to the Cardinals' camp this spring and, when he found he had an infield full of shortstops, decided Crespi was going to be the second baseman and told the kid so.

Crespi, batting .347 after 18
games of the regular season, has turned out to be quite a second baseman. Gus Mancuso, the veteran catcher, says Frank gets the ball away faster than any other man he ever saw at the position. It's the Creeper's first try at the job. Since his softball pitching days he has played first, caught, chased flies, and—

for the last couple years—held down shortstop.

Squat and sturdy, Creeper carries 180 pounds on that five-foot-eight frame of his—and he's putting a pretty good chunk of that weight behind baseballs on frequent occasions these fine spring days.

Making Hooks Is Bigger Problem Than Getting Fish to Take Them

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

AP Feature Service Writer
Denver—Take it from Drew McGill and Stan Wright, the problem of having a fish take hold of it isn't the only one connected with your fishing hook.

McGill and Wright, a couple of fellows whose love for fishing finally developed into a flourishing hook and fly manufacturing business, say there are hundreds of problems that must be solved before the fisherman ever gets his hands on the equipment.

When they first started their business—which has grown to a three-story building filled with 200 employees turning out millions of hooks—they had two major puzzles to solve.

They had to find a way to temper hooks so they didn't break, at the same time producing them by machines instead of by hand labor.

Tough to Solve

"The tempering problem was a tough one," says Wright. "Experts told us there was no known process in this country for tempering fish hooks in quantities because the extremely fine point had to be as finely tempered as the other portions of the hook where the metal was as much as hundreds of times as thick as the point."

"We had to start from scratch
and build machines to do the job,
but we finally succeeded."

"Likewise we devised a way of hollow grinding the points by ma-

Drew McGill, left, illustrates how he thinks a hook should fit into the mouth of a fish while his partner, Stan Wright, shows a new lure.

chine. We also have licked that problem."

Scores of machines are turning out hooks, ranging from tiny No.
14's, for artificial flies that catch trout, to giant 14/0 shark and salmon hooks for deep sea fishing.

An order for a special hook involves the making of an entire

new layout of special machinery.
"We even try to visit the locality where the hook is to be used so that we become familiar,
at first hand, with the fisherman's problem," says Wright. "We intend to keep this business after the war ends, when strong European competition will be back."

Premier Rashid Ali Al Gailani, who seized power early in April in a coup d'etat.

Twenty big long-range Nazi bombers were reported to have landed at Damascus; and an unspecified number of transport planes at Rayak airbase, 30 miles from Beirut.

Other German planes—bearing advance parties of propagandists and "Specialists"—were reported to have landed in Iraq yesterday; and it appeared evident that Adolf Hitler was drawing his battle lines for a major campaign in Asia Minor.

Authorized quarters in London professed confidence that the Iraq situation "can and will be handled all right," but the British government was known to be deeply concerned over France's attitude, and the London Daily Express said bluntly:

"The painful possibility of direct conflict between Britain and Vichy must be faced."

British Press Agrees

The London radio said the British press agreed generally that "a new and critical phase has been reached in British relations with the men of Vichy."

Only yesterday, Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told the House of Commons that R. A. F. warplanes had been "authorized" to bomb Nazi planes in Syria, and unconfirmed reports said the R. A. F. had already attacked one base in the French mandate which lies next door to Iraq.

Members of Parliament were described as feeling that Eden's statement "was in effect a declaration of war on the Vichy government," according to the London News-Chronicle.

In the war in the air, the British sent some of the R. A. F.'s biggest bombers against Berlin—the Germans admitted a "number" of explosive fire-bombs fell on the outskirts of the Reich capital—and also attacked Hannover, Hamburg, Cuxhaven and Nazi invasion ports along the French coast.

Heavy explosions rumbling across the channel coast for several hours before dawn indicated that R. A. F. bombers were hammering at Boulogne, Calais and German bases further inland.

Once again, Hitler's Luftwaffe remained strangely inactive, peeping the British Isles with only small, widely-separated attacks.

Coupled with the successful British counter-attack in North Africa, Premier Mussolini's high command admitted that British forces were striking hard at the Italian stronghold of Amba Alaja, in northern Ethiopia.

The British have reported 38,000 Italians trapped in the post.

"The epic resistance of our troops... once more is a symbol in the history of gallantry and glory for the Italian soldier," the Fascist high command said.

"Our garrison, attacked in force on all sides and pounded incessantly by enemy artillery and aviation is fighting with unconquered courage..."

Well-informed authorities in Washington said the President's appeal could be interpreted as meaning that Washington no longer placed reliance in the ability of Marshal Petain to resist German pressure for more active cooperation and that France henceforth must be considered in about the same category as other Nazi-dominated countries.

This immediately thrust to the fore the future status of French colonies in the western hemisphere, particularly Martinique and French Guiana, but there was no inkling in government quarters as to what might be contemplated.

There was a general belief in London that events in the middle east were shaping up for a new test of strength between Britain and Germany, in which France inevitably would be involved.

London had its first air alarm since Monday, but no bombs fell in the city and damage and casualties elsewhere were described by the British as light.

Italy, meanwhile, announced restoration of the Croatian monarchy by installing an Italian—perhaps King Vittorio Emanuele himself—as sovereign of the new state carved out of fallen Yugoslavia.

India has a skilled-labor shortage.

Survey of Year Of Our National Defense Effort

Marking a year of national defense effort—it was a year ago today that the President sent his first message to Congress asking for the first emergency defense appropriation—the Wall Street Journal, in a special edition, gives results of a survey of what has been accomplished. It finds America swinging into mass production of airplanes, tanks, ordnance and other supplies. It finds a two-ocean Navy on the way; a fighting army of 1,300,000 men in training as compared with a regular army of 243,000 men and a National Guard of 225,000 a year ago; an obsolete and small air force being replaced with one which will give this nation "unparalleled and unchallengeable air supremacy." It claims that no nation has ever done so much in so short a time, despite the loss of irreplaceable time through strikes and labor disputes. Government inefficiencies and, at times, some short-sighted industrial management.

General business activity last week gained further ground, following the stoppages caused by the soft coal strike and Barron's index moved up to 98.5 per cent of normal (in the last week of March it went to 100.2 per cent). Industrial building made a new high for 1941, with residential building in April highest since July, 1929. Railroad traffic made a sharp advance, carloadings being 837,149 cars, an increase of nearly 43,000 from the preceding week.

Auto sales are at a record high, with deliveries the first ten days of this month around 190,000 units, something like 50 per cent above the like period last year. Field stocks are reported below a year ago and equal to less than a month's supply.

With both foreign and domestic factors stocks and commodities declined Thursday. The Dow-Jones industrial average closed at 115.73, low point for the day and a net loss of 1.28 points. Increasing wage demands affected the rail and the steel, utilities dropped 12 points to 17.32. Activity was best in late trading, profit-taking being a factor and the futures index dropped 72 points, losing about half of Wednesday's large gain. Wheat lost as much as 1½ cents a bushel and cotton dropped 7 to 15 points after both had made new highs.

Fire Hazard Continues

Albany, N. Y., May 16 (AP)—Continued dry weather has "greatly intensified" the forest fire hazard in the Adirondack region closed to the public since April 30, the conservation department said today, and there is little possibility of its reopening over the weekend. Sixteen fires were reported the past 24 hours, all now under control. Nine were in the Adirondacks and seven in Suffolk county on Long Island. The closed area comprises 12 counties.

Receiver Is Appointed

Although the official order has not been received as yet in Kingston it is understood that Andrew J. Cook has been appointed receiver of Gregory & Company, and that Joseph H. Forman will serve as attorney for the receiver. The company recently filed a petition in bankruptcy in the U. S. District Court. The idea back of the bankruptcy proceedings is said to be an effort to reorganize the company, which is one of the oldest furniture houses in the city. Former Senator Charles W. Walton is attorney for Gregory & Company.

It Ain't Hay, It's Straw

AP Feature Service

On May 15, by tradition, men's thoughts turn to lighter headgear—and that means straw. (Of course the women have been wearing straw for weeks, but new versions keep bobbing up.) Here's a mixed company of 1941 creations that strictly are not hay.

Some bidding cropped up at the start on the theory Thursday's selling had gone too far. Near the final hour gains of fractions for steels, motors, rails and assorted industrials were well maintained. Dealings were exceptionally slow throughout, transfers being at the rate of approximately 300,000 shares.

Still clouding the speculative picture, brokers said, was the apparent shift of France toward "collaboration" with Germany, and fears of persistent labor rifts at home. Thoughts of some sort of "inflation" were believed to have been a mitigating influence.

Commodities improved after a hesitant start. Bonds were mixed. Better share performers included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Texas Corp., Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, United Aircraft, Kennecott, Western Union, Union Carbide and American Can.

International Harvester and J. I. Case were backward, along with American Telephone, Dow Chemical and Johns-Manville.

The curb was irregularly lower, minus signs being attached to Gulf Oil, Bell Aircraft, American Cyanamid "B" and American Gas.
